How organizations use VolunteerConnector:

RECRUITMENT	Your organizational profile acts as a micro site for your organization. This will highlight your organization; show your logo and contact information; direct people to your website and social media; tell your story and the impact you have on the community; and show all of the current volunteer positions you are recruiting for.

Applications	After you have created a profile to highlight your organization, you can begin recruiting volunteers. You will need to click on 'Postings' from the side bar. Here you will be able to see all of your active postings; the amount of views each posting has received; how long it has been on the site; and the number of applications each posting has received. You will be able to accept applications from volunteers directly.
MANAGEMENT
Volunteers
Scheduling	Once your posting is created, it will show potential volunteers a description on the requirements; what the role involves; skills required; benefits to the volunteer; and whether the position is flexible, accessible via transit, and/or good for families and groups. If organizations are able to make positions flexible, those positions will be highlighted higher up on the search results to help meet volunteers' needs. This posting also shows what screening process the volunteer needs to go through, and a large 'Apply Now' button that directly connects the volunteer to your organization.
